Any suggestions are greatly appreciated! A: My guess is that those are text files and you can just read them line by line and put the values into a matrix. For instance, if you can identify the position of the lines with four columns and two rows with the first four characters, you could have: filenames = dir("*.txt") for i in 1:length(filenames) line = readLines(filenames[i]) matrix = matrix(line) end If the position of each line are not know, you may be able to find it in a more advanced way, but since you're new in MATLAB, try this first. If you're really sure they are tab-delimited and not comma-delimited, you could use a few regular expressions (they can be tricky to deal with, but it's worth learning!). Q: how to split a string in python I need to split a string into parts with.3 value. input: str ="N001.3" output: ["N","001.3"] Is there any easy way to do this? I just need the first part (before ".") and the last part (after ".") Thanks for help. >>> my_string = "N001.3" >>> my_string.split('.', 1)[0] 'N' >>> my_string.split('.', 1)[-1] '3' >>> print my_string
